“ I met Delisha in just before starting college 1997 when we lived in a neighborhood up the street. We took our puppy to her house to let she and her roommates visit with them and she showed the most enthusiasm about it. The puppies slept in her lap for an hour and she talked about them for years to come. I started visiting regularly in 2000 near the end of college, and Delisha always smiled. We shared the same favorite color of purple and I loved seeing her every time I went for the past 25 years. If I visited on a holiday, I was sad to miss her but it was because she was so loved by her family and spent holidays and birthdays with them as well as enjoyed visits from them regularly. She talked of her sisters and parents frequently and her spirit was so endearing and will remain so eternally.
